Best and Worst of Cycling in 2006

By Bob Beane

It was another "interesting" year for cycling. As we end the year, here are a few nominations for "Best" and "Worst" in an assortment of cycling-related categories:

• Best Buzz – International Cycling: Tour de France, pre-pre-race... Before the pre-race suspensions, the "Landis affair", and all that has followed, there was the wonderful anticipation that comes in the year of a Tour de France without a returning champion. We'll try again in 2007, beginning with a Prologue in London ...

• Best Buzz – American Cycling: Tour de California... The inaugural race garnered the largest crowd of spectators for any event in the history of California, and drew a number of top teams from Europe as well as the cream of the domestic crop. When fog cleared from the opening prologue, the top American riders had claimed the podium places, and aside from the sprint stage wins of Haedo (Argentina, Toyota-United), the Yanks traded press time and podium spots throughout the week. In the end, the first four spots were Landis, Zabriske, Julich and Hincapie...could we just stop and race the Tour de France right now?! Buzz part two – It's coming back for an encore in February, 2007. See the official web site for the race at www.amgentourofcalifornia.com for dates, detailed course descriptions, route maps, etc.

• Worst Buzz – International Cycling: Performance Enhancing Techniques, non-permitted varieties... Never, ever have so many top cyclists been implicated or accused. The "Who's Who" list was literally the potential Tour de France podium. Now, the "Operation Puerto" charges are being dropped, and there are as many questions about the French lab's handling of Landis' samples as there are wine makers in Burgundy. Who is clean, who is being unfairly damaged, and who can you believe? Jeez, I'm turnin' off the TV and goin' for a club ride...

• Best New Technology – SRAM Groupo... Not just Campy and Shimano any more, and not just "me too" technology.

• Best Performance by Municipalities outside of California – Arizona Cities... Despite all the cycling-related issues we have in Arizona, and we have a bunch, we the most municipalities qualified as Bicycle Friendly Communities of any state...except our large and populous neighbor to the west. Tempe, Chandler, Gilbert, Scottsdale and Flagstaff all have at least bronze status, and Tucson/East Pima County reached Gold status this year, according to the League of American Bicyclists. If only we could get AZ tourism officials, the Governor's office and ADOT to realize what an opportunity Arizona has to be a year-round road/MTB cycling destination and create a master plan to be the first ever Bicycle Friendly State!!!

• Worst Legal Support of Cycling in Arizona – Arizona Legislature... Several years ago, a three foot safe passing law was enacted in Arizona, which is similar to those in other states. However, the law remains largely without teeth. Drivers continue to kill and injure cyclists in situations ranging from carelessness to outright operating violations, with very few legal or monetary consequences. When an unlicensed, uninsured driver can run a red light, critically injure a cyclist and escape with only minor financial consequences, the laws of the State need to be changed. When a driver, under the influence or not, can hit and kill a cyclist from behind and escape with minimal consequences, the laws of the State need to be changed. Each of us needs to take as a mission to contact a legislator and ask for change.

• Worst Cycling-Related "Letters to the Editor" in Arizona – Ahwatukee resident, Bob McCarthy... When Don Anselmo was killed by a reckless young driver on the shoulder of Pecos Road (November, 2004), Bob McCarthy ("DPS, retired") reared his unsympathetic and ignorant head in a big way, and was taken to task by a host of cyclists and community members. Well, when George Esahak-Gage was recently hit by a 23 year-old unlicensed, uninsured motorist who ran a red light at the end of an off ramp from I-10 to Chandler Blvd, mister "Cyclists don't belong on MY road" surfaced again... Not only do his "turtle shell and spandex" comments reveal his true colors as an anti-cyclist to the core, his letters to the Editor of the Ahwatukee Foothills News reveal an ignorance of the subject matter he purports to be the master of that is almost beyond belief. It is difficult to imagine anyone actively involved in any cycling discussions in the State of Arizona being more ignorant of facts and wrong-minded than this shameful excuse for a former law officer. With apologies to the famous Southern philosopher, F. Gump, "stupid is as stupid says", and this guy always has a lot to say.

• Best Friends of Cycling in the Metro-Phoenix area – Coalition of Arizona Bicyclists... Bill Lazenby, Rich Rumer (Co-Presidents) and the rest of this organization are constantly working to improve conditions for all cyclists throughout AZ, and are particularly well connected with ADOT, MCDOT and community representatives in Maricopa County. They continue to deserve our financial and moral support.

• Best Race Performance by a Phoenix area Non-Racing Club – PMBC at El Tour... Neal, Ron, Bob, Marty, Kurt, Jim, Charlie, Gary, Steve, Tina, Ivan, Warren, Barry, Jerry & Paula, Glen & Mike, Mark & Margi, Sue & Ron, Jackie & Larry, and the rest of the "Platinum & Gold Posse" that rode the 109 between 4:41 and 5:59 this year... You guys rocked!!!

“A Summer’s Tale”

Excerpts from a Roger Simmons true life story

During the summer of 2006, when Roger was away from home, a burglar struck...Roger is reputed to be a bit frugal (which, the Editor believes he will admit...if pressed), so this “haul” would not rank up there with looting the Louvre or the Taj Mahal. However, several of Roger’s bikes were stolen...which he considers the most significant loss of this entire event. Some excerpts from his account are as follows...

“The burglar broke a window, got in, and got for his trouble the following items: 1 good pellet rifle with case and ammo, 1 old BB gun, 1 quarter from each state so far issued, 2 hunting knives and 3 dead battery-no charger-no service cell phones, 2 broken portable radios (with broken cassette players), 1 used energy saver light bulb (I kid you not), and 1 used bike helmet.”

“He worked hard to free a steel Schwinn mountain bike, but discovered it had only one pedal and no cogs on the rear wheel, so left it politely parked in the living room. He fell down at least once, because he figured the bed was solid (in reality, it was constructed of bench-type van seats with invisible gaps). He may have been hit by a bumped lamp, because it was found on the floor. All this happened at night, with no electricity in a hot house, with no water.”

The burglar appeared to become frustrated as he emptied shelves, finding little that he wanted and making such a mess that he couldn’t really move around much.

“He may have been intending to return, but “oops!” forgot and left his wrecking bar behind. Considering the trials, maybe the break-in tool left behind wasn’t really forgotten after all. After all, consider the big and tall garage cabinets, containing larger heavier items, were absolutely undisturbed except for one open door... It took only one look...He had learned his lesson well: ‘If this is burglary, you can count me out’ “.

The final irony was that found at the scene was, literally, the shirt off the burglar’s back...most likely used to muffle the sound of breaking glass...and, finally, Roger says “The burglar couldn’t even call for help, because, yup, no phone at the burgled house. It’s a cruel, heartless and unfair world”.

If anyone does happen to see a bike that looks like one of the following, Roger would appreciate being contacted. Please see him for brand names and other identifying characteristics not supplied in the descriptions:

- “Antique, ungodly, flexible, dented and bent, downright dangerous, light titanium bike with outdated quality parts (Roger’s best bike).
- “Aluminum 90’s bike with epoxy patched hole in the frame and worn out rear wheel bearings (Roger’s “next best” bike).

If all else fails, and we do not find the bikes, your Editor suggests that we all just “chip in” and donate a nice used frame, fork and bars, a couple of wheels, all of our old parts, and a gift certificate to one of our sponsoring bike shops for tires, tubes, a new helmet and whatever else Roger needs. Hey, he’s one of us, and he’d never feel comfortable riding the latest carbon/titanium, bank-busting, Campy Record, “home equity loan required”, custom-designed bike anyway...I figure a few dollars from a few members plus the above parts and we’ve got Roger’s bike “fleet” on it’s way back...

(Editor’s Note: Roger has never suggested the possibility of his friends at PMBC helping to make him “whole” from this incident. He wanted his burglary story to be told in a humorous vein, and in the hopes that he might get one or more of his bikes back. Your Editor, however, has chosen to float the concept that we help take care of our own when a bicycle theft occurs. This is not without precedent, and is the spirit that our club seems to embody. Food for thought if his bikes do not appear, soon.)

- Climb the Alpe’Huez the day before the Tour de France passes. Watch the entire procession of lunatics. Partake of all alcohol offered to you by the crazed fans on that hill. Cheer like a senseless fanatic for the leaders. Cry like a baby for the sprinter’s gruppetto who will be suffering like animals. Take photos—but if you stand in the middle of the road, under no circumstances whatsoever should you knock a racer down.
- Watch Paris-Roubaix from the forest of Wallers .
- Get your photo taken with Eddy Merckx at Interbike, with that glazed look in your star-struck eyes.
- Ride from San Francisco to Los Angeles along Highway 1 during the gray whale migration.
- Do RAGBRAI towing a keg of beer in a Burley trailer with a Run-DMC ghetto blaster duct-taped to your handlebars blasting Donna Summer, Bee Gees, Tower of Power and Harold Melvin and the Blue Notes.
- Memorize ten exclamations from Phil Liggett’s Tour Coverage. Recite them at the top of your lungs, complete with suave British accent, substituting your buddies’ names for the names of the Tour riders, at your next club ride.
- Pick a year, any year, and ride your bike more miles than you drive your car.

Food for Thought... "Fruit" for pickin'

The Town of Gilbert recently received a grant of $490,000 from the Federal Government in conjunction with a project to construct canal crossing bridges for pedestrians and cyclists and otherwise improve the Town's growing trail system. Has your community received its fair share of Federal multi-modal transportation funding? Do your community planners and leaders know that these resources exist, and do they have plans to pursue similar projects on your behalf? If not, who better to tell them about this opportunity than you?
